Inspiration From Wasps

Did you know that nature thought about paper first? In the early 1700s, the French scientist René de Réaumur stumbled upon the secret of making paper from wood by observing wasps. He noticed that wasps turn wood into a pulp with their spit to make strong waterproof paper nests.